I oppose the application

Notes
500 metres is definitely not long enough given how much even domestic cats wander. I'd support a distance shorter than 3 km, but think it probably needs to be at least 1 or 1.5km. This would better align with the domestic cat wandering reported in the studies quoted in the application, which did acknowledge that while most don't wander beyond 500m, some do (eg the cat that wandered by 2.3km and the other that wandered by 1km). Given that these studies were of relatively low numbers of cats, this suggests there are likely to be some outliers.
