NZKGI agrees that HC risks can be managed. The industry has good controls in place and are looking at other ways to further protect people and the environment.

HC is critical for production of New Zealand's biggest horticultural export. A ban will severely impact production and cause significant loss of income and GDP. Many will no longer be in business. Regions and communities will be impacted.

Kiwifruit growers are committed to ensuring a safe, profitable industry not only for today's growers but for generations to come. Growers are committed to keeping HC and know there are likely to be further controls they will need to adopt.

Kiwifruit growers are an integral part of the communities they live and work in and want good relationships with neighbours.

Growers request a public hearing and consultation with the Kiwifruit Industry before any further measures are taken in the progress of this bill.
