Notes

Te Waikoropupū Springs is a national, if not international treasure along with its neighbouring waterways. They MUST NOT be interfered with in anyway. In these days of climate change and the continual destruction of nature it is so very important to preserve what we have left for our future generations. I have personally visited the Springs and the area around it and was utterly horrified to hear that it might be threatened. It sacred in so very many ways. I will heartily support any measures to keep these Springs and waterways safe from man made intervention.
