Notes

This is a pristine natural treasure and as such must be valued and protected. It is also a national treasure. New Zealand is nothing without its glorious nature, flora, fauna and unique biodiversity. This must be understood and laws made to protect this area and the many others that are under threat. It is critical that nothing is removed from this ecosystem and that it is left intact so that its beauty and wonder can be enjoyed for generations to come. Long term planning and thinking is necessary at this time, not destroying something that can never be replaced for a perceived quick buck.
